Traveling between Marsa Alam and Luxor involves navigating Egyptian tourist transport regulations, police checkpoints, and geographical restrictions.

1. Designated Approved Routes Only

- The Safaga–Qena Route (Mandatory for Foreigners): Foreign tourists traveling by road must head north along the Red Sea coast to Safaga, turn inland through Qena, and then proceed south to Luxor (approx. 380–450 km / 4.5–6 hours).
- El Quseir –Kift / Idfu Roads (Restricted): The direct inland mountain roads connecting Marsa Alam / El Quseir to the Nile Valley (like the El Quseir –Kift road) are strictly reserved for Egyptian citizens and commercial transport. Tourist drivers and taxis attempting these shortcuts will be turned back at police checkpoints.

2. Police Permits & Security Checkpoints

- Travel Permits: Private drivers, taxis, and tour operators must obtain a police travel permit from the Tourist Police before setting off.
- Required Documentation: You must provide your driver/tour company with a copy of your passport (and visa page), hotel room number, and full itinerary at least 24 hours in advance.
- Checkpoint Stops: Expect several military/police checkpoints along the coastal road and inland turnoffs. Keep your physical passport on you at all times; digital copies on a phone are generally not accepted.

3. Vehicle & Transport Restrictions

- Registered Tourist Transport: Taxis or private transfers must be registered with the Ministry of Tourism. Unlicensed private cars carrying foreign tourists are frequently stopped or detained at checkpoints.
- Public Buses: Standard long-distance buses (e.g., Go Bus) run along the approved routes and handle security clearance for all passengers at checkpoints. However, schedules can be limited.

4. Practical Travel Advice

- No Direct Flights: There are no direct domestic flights operating between Marsa Alam (RMF) and Luxor (LXR).
- Self-Driving: Renting a car to self-drive is generally discouraged for this route due to strict police checkpoint approvals for non-Egyptians and complex navigation requirements.
- Timing: Private drivers usually schedule departures around 4:30 AM – 5:00 AM for day trips to reach Luxor before peak midday heat and return to Marsa Alam by late evening.
